Neutron Enterprises' Subsidiary Stock-Trak Secures Contract Renewal From eFinancialCareers.com

Neutron Enterprises Inc. ("Neutron") (OTCBB: NTRN) announced today that its Stock-Trak, Inc. ("Stock-Trak") subsidiary, a leading provider of stock portfolio simulations for the educational and corporate markets, announced today that eFinancialCareers.com (eFC), a leading provider of financial career opportunities, job market news and analysis, has renewed its contract with Stock-Trak to host various financial trading games with European University students.

After a successful campaign last year using a Stock-Trak developed simulation to promote the eFC and the eFC sponsor brands, eFC has elected to employ Stock-Trak to produce up to twelve, one-month simulations for university business students throughout Europe. The Stock-Trak developed eFC trading challenges focus on the European stock and futures markets. RWE, Fidelity, Merrill Lynch and Schroders are just a few of the industry leaders that will be sponsoring upcoming trading events that will offer European students an opportunity to learn more about the real-world of security analysis and portfolio management. Many students use these programs to enhance prospects for employment at these leading financial institutions.

"We are pleased to have the opportunity expand our relationship with eFC," said Rory Olson, Neutron's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. "eFC represents the latest company to utilize Stock-Trak to offer unique programs for students, which provides employers and students with the tools necessary to successfully compete in the financial markets upon graduation."

Stock-Trak, through its www.stocktrak.com, provides educational stock market simulation services to over 800 college professors and over 50,000 students worldwide. Stock-Trak's network of branded sites is used by over 100,000 middle and high school students each year.

About Neutron Enterprises
